

627 – G6/S6 Responsibilities

1. Purpose: Define the mission, responsibilities, and organization of the G6 section.
2. Mission: The G6 primary responsibility is technical control of the voice and digital networks within the Division and coordinates directly with the Bde S6 and NETOPs for management. The section also coordinates manages internal Division CP voice, data, and audio/visual (A/V) communications that allow the division to effectively command and control all divisional units, synchronize operations, and defeat the enemy. Additionally, the G6 section coordinates the division's communication effort in a joint environment to support the Division Commander, his staff, and subordinate/separate brigades/battalions in order to ensure effective battle command.
3. General. The G6 section is headed by the Assistant Chief of Staff, G6, assisted by the Deputy G6, with the G6 Sergeant Major as the non-commissioned officer in charge. The ACofS, G6 has overall responsibility of and authority over the G6 section. The G6 is the Chief Information Officer in the division and reports to the Chief of Staff for all signal-related issues. The G6 SGM is the principle support element of the G6 section. The G6 SGM is responsible for and reports directly to the ACofS, G6 for all issues related to the soldiers of the G6 section. These issues include, but are not limited to, life support, professional development, individual schooling/training, administrative, disciplinary, and force protection. The Deputy G6 oversees all actions within the G6 section while serving as the officer in charge of signal operations.